HONGKONG, DECEMBER 20TH, 1870.

THE lecture recently delivered by the Rev. Dr. LEGGE, giving illustrations of the ideas of the greatest of Chinese writers upon the question of governing the natives of this country, has an interesting bearing upon a subject, which has long been discussed and has elicited a variety of opinions, the question, namely, whether it is possible for European rule to be successfully instituted in this country. As recently observed, in commenting on this subject, any conclusions with regard to the possibility of governing the Chinese, which may be formed exclusively from a consideration of the state of affairs in Hongkong, is likely to be erroneous, on account of the exceptional nature of the place and the small efforts which have been made to meet the difficulties connected with it. But there is another very important point in reference to this question which it is essential to bear in mind in order to arrive at a just conclusion. In Hongkong, we exert absolutely no moral influence upon the native population. It may be little flattering to our amour propre to make this acknowledgement, but it is unquestionably true. Every day, incidents occur which prove that the Chinese here have very little appreciation of foreign institutions. They look upon everything through the medium of their own traditions, and associate with the Government of this Colony all the corruptions which characterise their own administration. While efforts are made in all directions to treat the natives with justice, they have no idea that it is possible for fair dealing to exist between a European Government and a Chinese population. If they succeed in the main in obtaining what appears to them to be justice, they attribute the circumstance to their own adroitness, and do not for an instant think that the credit is due to the authorities. They, in fact, look upon the officials as their natural oppressors, and we see instances every day of attempts on their part to place themselves under a system of their own, and so to be clear of the real government of the Colony, which they neither understand nor trust.

The power of any government consists mainly in its moral influence; and this proposition is especially true with regard to the Chinese. As was pointed out by Dr. LEGGE in his recent lecture, CONFUCIUS relied very greatly upon the force of example on the part of the rulers influencing the masses to right action; and, in laying so much stress upon this element of power, the Sage showed that he thoroughly understood the Chinese people. There are probably no people in the world more subject to the force of example and precept on the part of their rulers, if only those rulers can succeed in commanding their respect and confidence. But this latter is the first essential towards exerting any influence of this nature, and unfortunately it is that in which up to the present time foreigners have entirely failed.

It is not surprising that efforts to govern the Chinese should prove abortive under such circumstances. There is no co-operation on the part of the masses. All the acts of the authorities are regarded by them as attempts at oppression; and this being their idea, the door is left open for unscrupulous natives to make them so, by pretending that they are invested with such powers for squeezing and intimidating as are commonly allowed by Mandarins in China to their underlings. An entirely false impression is thus conveyed to the bulk of the Chinese with regard to the action of the foreign authorities, and thus the original distrust becomes intensified by the consequences which it has itself produced.

In respect, however, to the government of a large portion of the whole of the empire by a European power, should such ever be established, the question would stand in a very different light. The influence of the governors upon the governed would then have an opportunity of extending itself in a way which cannot possibly be the case, where a few foreigners living upon a rock on the coast have to pit their moral influence against that of the whole Chinese nation on the mainland—for this is really the influence which is at work on the minds of the Chinese, who take up their, generally temporary, residence in Hongkong. The actual possession of governing power is the first element of influence on the masses, and if it be followed by just and equitable rule, the moral power necessary to maintain authority becomes established. Stated in less formal language, this seems to be much what was indicated by Confucius in his remarks upon the effects of example on the people. The Chinese have at all times shown themselves peculiarly amenable to the effects which the sight of a well organised and equitably administered government is certain to produce in any place; and it is probable that, were a rule established in the country which would be able to influence large masses, the moral power would effect what no vigilance or physical force is sufficient to accomplish. At the present time every Chinaman is imbued with the deepest contempt of foreigners. Some of the natives are not unfriendly, but it may be stated almost without hesitation that there are none who do not look upon Europeans as their inferiors. If, however, foreigners were the governing body, much of this feeling of contempt would vanish. A large and influential class of Chinese would become attached to Europeans by interest, and a knowledge of foreign languages and literature would probably become general, as it would soon be found to be the passport to employment in the Government service. Such an influence as this would materially alter the problem of governing the Chinese, and the likelihood is that in the course of years the old prejudices would wear away, and that confidence and co-operation on the part of the people—the great requisites for sound government in all parts of the world—would take the place of the suspicion and secret opposition, which have hitherto baffled all efforts to apply a just system of administration to such Chinese as have fallen under European jurisdiction.

THE BEETHOVEN CENTENARY.

If the great musical master whose works have now for a century formed the delight of thousands, had been told that a hundred years after the date of his birth, his fame would be celebrated fifteen thousand miles away from Europe, he would have thought his friends and admirers were indulging in the most extravagant enthusiasm and the wildest romance. Yet we find that the centenary of the musical Dante, as he has been called, will not be allowed to pass either in Shanghai or in this Colony without appropriate honours being done to his memory. No more suitable plan could be devised than concerts, in which some of the most celebrated of his works are performed. As Saint Paul's stands the monument of Wren, with the words inscribed there:

"Si monumentum quæris circumspice,"

So if we desire to discover a memorial of Beethoven, we find it in the grand compositions which will live as long as European civilization.

Of Beethoven's claims as a musical master there are diverse opinions. He is deemed by some as inferior to Haydn and Mozart in purity of harmonic combination, and the skilful management of all his materials; while others, in consideration of his power and originality place him at the head of all composers. It is proverbially difficult to decide where doctors disagree; but whatever the merits of Beethoven as compared with other composers may be, there is no question that his works, judged by the best principles of art criticism, must be placed in the highest rank. It may be safely said that everything written by Beethoven from the simplest Sonata to the most elaborate Symphony, has the leading characteristic of all high art that it appears the more beautiful upon repetition and close study. Whether paintings or a musical compositions, few works of high art can be thoroughly appreciated at once. In meritricious art the qualities are all on the surface, and the faults beneath it. In high art exactly the contrary is the case, and a masterpiece either of painting or music at first rather offends by its shortcomings than pleases by its excellencies. Thus, for a long time, Beethoven's music, though always appreciated in Germany, where musical taste is of the highest order, and though admired by connoisseurs in other parts, had not that wide appreciation which its merits called for, and this was especially the case in England, where at the present day, the appreciation of Beethoven's music is as high as on the continent. This has resulted in a great degree from the public taste being led up to it through the works of Mendelssohn, who seized many of the characteristics of his great predecessor, though his compositions were generally more florid. Previously, Beethoven's master pieces were acknowledged as great works as, indeed, many of them have a simple grandeur which must appeal to all; but some of the pieces now recognised as his finest works were long pronounced dry and unmelodious. Time was required for people to discover the real merits of much that appeared faulty at first glance. But time only was required. In the course of years the hidden merits of many works at first pronounced to be crude and unfinished became thoroughly appreciated; and, at the present day, many of the best musical judges look upon the most hasty compositions of Beethoven in the same way as an artist regards the roughest sketches of a Durer or a Turner.

Ludwig von Beethoven was born at Bonn on the Rhine. He was the second son of Theodore von Beethoven, a native of Maestricht. His musical genius showed itself early at the age of five, when he began to study under Van der Eder, the Court Organist, and at the age of twelve he was placed under C. G. Neffe, the successor of Eden, who set his pupil to study the works of Bach and Handel.

It is almost astounding to reflect that Beethoven suffered from deafness during the greater portion of his life. At twenty-eight, he was totally deaf, and this preyed so much upon his mind that he says that at times he had felt disposed to commit suicide, but that his art restrained him. It is indeed one of the strangest facts in the history of the human mind that Milton was blind and Beethoven deaf. Mr. Russell, in his Tour in Germany, thus speaks of the great musician: "Though not an old man he is lost to society in consequence of his extreme deafness, which has rendered him almost unsocial. The neglect of his person which he exhibits gives him a somewhat wild appearance. His features are strong and prominent, his eye full of rude energy; his hair, which neither comb nor scissors seem to have visited for years, overshadows his brow in the quantity and confusion to which only the snakes round a Gorgon's head offer a parallel. His general behaviour does not ill accord with this unpromising exterior. Except when he is among his chosen friends, kindliness or affability are not his characteristics. The total loss of hearing has deprived him of all the pleasure which society can give, and perhaps soured his temper." Such was the man who, in his works, has shown the most delicate taste and the tenderest feeling; and who could appeal to the finest sympathies of the heart. He died at Vienna in his fifty-seventh year, and was followed to his grave, in the churchyard of Friedhofe, about two miles off and a favourite resort of his, by a large number of literary men and musicians, besides a vast concourse of the people. Against the wall there is a simple slab with the word BEETHOVEN, surmounted by a lyre, and at the top wings to signify resurrection and immortality.

The above briefly is the history of this great composer. Although from his deafness he lacked ordinary sociability, there is much related of him which shows that he was not deficient in kindliness of spirit. Himself the delight of all his hearers, he was alone in the midst of numbers; one of the greatest of musical writers, he could not hear his own compositions. Often in playing, he would touch the piano notes so lightly that no sound was emitted, but his eye flashed as he heard with his mind's ear the strains which have now for more than three quarters of a century delighted the whole civilized world. In such a one, excuse may be made for many shortcomings, and when we hear his grand compositions we cannot but feel an admiration for his genius only equalled by sympathy for his suffering.

By an accident, Signor Pellico omitted to announce the time, 9 o'clock punctually, at which his Concert this evening is to commence. Apart from the merits of the performance itself, as shown by the programme, Signor Pellico will doubtless be liberally supported by the public on account of the kind manner in which he adjourned his concert in order not to interfere with that given in aid of the sick and wounded.

A telegram has been received from the North via Kiatcha, which states that "thirteen American Monitors have been sold to and have sailed for Russia," no doubt destined for the Black Sea.

It will be observed by a notification elsewhere, that H.E. the Lieut.-Governor has ordered that the customary holidays at this season shall be kept in the Government-offices from Thursday, 22nd, to Saturday, 24th instant, inclusive.

A new feature is commenced in the present number of this paper, in the publication of the first portion of the Summaries in the London Daily News for the fortnight preceding the departure of the mail. These will be continued regularly, so as to form a complete diary of news on home subjects, which will doubtless be useful to many in these parts.

We are informed officially that the managing directors of the P. and O. Company have telegraphed to the effect that the steamers will commence the Brindisi line with a vessel leaving Brindisi on the 18th December, and arriving at Alexandria in time to despatch the mails on the 25th December. The last steamer to Marseilles route would leave Alexandria on December 11th.

Mr. C. W. Goodwin, Assistant Judge of H. B.M. Supreme Court, Shanghai, in distributing a portion of the prizes recently presented to the Volunteers, observed: "Whether our lot is cast in Europe or in China we are perpetually reminded of the wisdom of being prepared for an emergency. It is easy to say that the Community was filled with causeless alarm in June and July, but I believe that to the fact of your prompt reorganization we own our present security."

In the home papers brought by the present mail, the discussion upon affairs in China is continued at some length. A noticeable feature is the conversion of the Daily Telegraph. That paper, which seems to be out-Timesing the Times had, as will doubtless be recollected by those interested in Chinese affairs, steadily taken up the side in favour of the Chinese. It now follows the plan some three months ago adopted by the leading journal; and, after complaining that it is very unfortunate so much uncertainty attends all information on Chinese affairs, turns rounds gracefully and admits that it is time we "applied a close, but friendly pressure on the central Government." The Times, which seems quite able to get at correct information about China, when it considers it necessary to publish it, says in reference to the telegrams announcing the executions at Tientsin, that there is reason to fear the example thus made will have fallen short of the just demands of the French Minister. The only paper now on the Chinese side is the Pall Mall Gazette, which publishes a letter signed "Mencius" the writer of which, maunders, in a way suggestive of information from a well known newspaper correspondent at Tientsin, on the complete innocence of the Chinese and the unscrupulousness of every foreigner in the country.

POLICE INTELLIGENCE.

BEFORE C. MAY AND J. RUSSELL, ESQS.

December 19th, 1870.

ROBBERY ON THE PRAYA.

Lee-a-wong, of Toong-koon, a coolie, was convicted of being a rogue and a vagabond, and sent to gaol, besides being ordered to find security at the expiration of his sentence in two householders in $25 each to be forthcoming to answer any charge for six months. According to the evidence of a Chinese vaccinator, who lives at Mr. Lechler's house, he had been stopped by defendant while he was going along the Praya on his way to a passage boat, and robbed of his jacket and shoes. After this defendant and another man had accompanied him to the Basil Chapel, that he might redeem the articles of which he had been deprived for some 3,200 cash; on arriving he had told his uncle, who was also a vaccinator, and he had told Mr. Lechler, who went to the station and charged the prisoner.

A DANGEROUS CHARACTER.

George William Smith, of America, a seaman unemployed, was charged by Henry Otto, barman of the National Tavern, as follows:—Defendant, a lodger in the house, on the 17th instant, about 4 p.m. applied to him for a glass of gin, this had been refused, because Mr. Olsen, the landlord, had given orders to this effect. Defendant had then abused him and called him nasty epithets, and at the same time left the house. At about 6.30 p.m. complainant was walking outside the house, when defendant, who was talking to Mr. Olsen, accused him of having said something to Mr. Marshall, which had prevented him from being shipped; to this witness had replied that he said nothing, then defendant called him a liar and abused him. At 8 p.m. the defendant had apologised, and said that he deserved a thrashing on account of what he had said; and would take it quietly. To this he had replied, "Do not say anything more about it." About ten minutes afterwards the defendant came to the bar, and taking a revolver out of his pocket, said to him, "You had better say your prayers, as I shall put a bullet through you before morning." He, witness thought this was a joke and was not apprehensive, but considering it dangerous that the man should have a revolver, he tried to take it from him, but could not. Defendant remained at the bar, holding the revolver and turning round the chambers, occasionally saying that he could put a bullet through complainant. At about 10 p.m. he had thought that he might contrive to take the revolver from him, and pretended to put away his pipe near to where defendant was standing, but the man suspected him. He, witness, had then gone behind the counter, being about three feet from defendant and having his back towards him; in this position he heard the report of a pistol being fired, the bullet of the charge having broken a bottle near to him. Turning immediately defendant said the discharge was accidental. There was not any other person at that time in the bar. He had immediately taken the revolver from defendant, called a constable and given him into custody. Defendant was nearly sober at the time. Defendant stated that he had been drinking, and intending to sell the revolver, he was about to remove the charges. He had no recollection of threatening to shoot complainant, and was quite certain that he had no intention so to do. While he was revolving the chamber trying to remove it, it was accidentally discharged. Three months with hard labour.

ASSAULT AND BATTERY.

Wong Awong, a coolie, was accused by Leo Acheung, a bong coolie, as follows: Complainant was at the Hydrant in Bonham Street and placed his buckets at the two openings, defendant, who was also getting water, asked him why he occupied both taps, and then threw away his buckets, struck him a blow which blackened his eye, and hit him on the back. This charge was corroborated by an eye witness. Defendant was fined $2, in default seven days imprisonment his; defence went haltingly. First, he stated that he did not strike the complainant, the blow was struck by another coolie; secondly, he stated the complainant first struck him a blow which he had returned.

DAMAGE TO CROCKERY.

Chow Ang, was fined $1; he admitted the leatle drop over, and it appeared by the evidence of a married Chinese woman that he had entered into her house and asked for some tea, that he had upset the table and broken some plates. He was also ordered to compensate this damage in the sum of fifty cents, or else suffer three days' imprisonment.

"A FALSE WEIGHT IS AN ABOMINATION."

Two men, the one a fishmonger, the other a cook, were found fighting in the Sai-ying-poon market. The first defendant, a fishmonger, had sold some fish to the second, and they disputed about the weight; each one had his balance with him, the large one the property of No. 1 weighed 15 taels to the catty, the other, the property of No 2 gave 17 taels. Both defendants evidently believed in the justness of their balances, so His Worship directed Mr. Ng Achoy, the Court Interpreter, to test the balances, when that of No. 1 was found to be short one tael in the catty, while that of No. 2 was quite correct. No. 1 was fined $5, in default three weeks imprisonment, and the false balance to be destroyed; the other man was discharged.

FILTHY INSULTS TO A FEMALE.

Wong-a-foo, a butcher, was charged by a Chinese female, who declared herself to be the concubine of a Dock Yard Constable, with having uttered remarks about her as she was walking through the streets in company with an old woman, her servant, of a filthy and indecent character, which remarks she suffered for some time in silence. Upon her remonstrating with defendant the offence was repeated. Perceiving a constable approaching she had given the man in charge, when the fellows, his companions, ran away. Complainant did not think she could identify any of them. Accused made a defence in which prevarication appeared. He was with several other butchers, and they used the language imputed to him, these ran away and complainant had him apprehended because he was the only one who remained. Defendant then stated that he had not distinctly heard what the other butchers said: he did not know the name of the other butchers nor where to find them. Remanded until the 26th instant.

INCORRIGIBLE.

Kwok-a-yow, of Macao, an unemployed boy, aged 15 years, was convicted of being a rogue and a vagabond, and sent to Goal for three months with hard labour. Prisoner had already been in Gaol three times for Lurceny, viz., 11th October, 1869; 25th October, 1869; 27th January, 1870, he had also been kept in solitary confinement and flogged. Prisoner had been arrested dodging about a house in Chcular-buildings, in a most suspicious manner; when observed by an inmate of the second floor he was proceeding upstairs. Prisoner, as is usual on all similar cases, was looking for the man who is never forthcoming.

DISORDER IN A THEATRE.

P. C. No. 93 charged Lum Asing, of Sunon, a cotton worker, with disorderly conduct at the Tung Hing Theatre, stating that the offence of throwing down their mats by a portion of the audience when dissatisfied was becoming quite a common case; he had watched the audience and saw the defendant thrown one mat. Fined $1, in default three days imprisonment.

"HEADS I WIN, TAILS YOU LOOSE."

Choy Afook, of Sunon, a rice pounder in the Ying Chung Chandler's shop, at West Point, accused of pulling off the queue of Lam Asın, a customer for some rice, with whom he had established a difference of opinion as to the amount of charge due upon a certain transaction, was ordered to pay amends for the same in the sum of $25, in default, one month's imprisonment with hard labour, and fined in addition $25 in default one month's hard labour, for the assault. Complainant and his late queue were sent to Dr. Young, who pronounced that both the standing and hauling parts were highly bulbous.

SUPREME COURT.

Criminal Sessions.

BEFORE THE HON. CHIEF-JUSTICE SMALE.

The December sessions were opened yesterday by the Chief Justice, and the following jury was called:—Messrs. D. Illingworth, G. B. Falconer, W. Dawson, G. L. Agabeg, W. H. Hammond, J. C. dos Remedios and W. D. Autey.

ESCAPE FROM GAOL.

Thomas Borns pleaded guilty to escaping from Victoria Gaol before the expiration of his sentence of three years' penal servitude, imposed at the November Criminal Sessions, prisoner having been convicted of forgery. Sentence was reserved.

LARCENY.

Antonio Xavier Macedo, was arraigned on an information for stealing a piece of silk, the property of Messrs. Barrelet and Marty, Queen's-road, on the 17th November last, prisoner pleaded not guilty.

The case for the prosecution was that on the day in question the prisoner entered the prosecutors' shop, where Madame F. Leger, a dressmaker employed by them, was attending to customers. This was about 2 45 p.m. He asked Madame Leger the price of certain earrings, and went out again. He returned in about a quarter or half an hour, and began to ask prices generally all round the shop. There was a piece of silk for a dress lying loosely on the counter, and prisoner was observed to inspect it very carefully, opening the paper, &c. He bought some earrings finally, and some flannel, but did not pay for either. He asked Madame Leger to send the boy with him to his house to receive the money. The boy, who had been in the shop all the time, was sent with the articles, with instructions to return with them or the money. Now this boy had also observed the prisoner looking at the silk, and he observed something else. When the prisoner came in, his coat was open, and when he went out it was buttoned closely up, while the prisoner was "hitching up" his trousers, and adjusting his clothing very diligently. The boy followed him to an alley beside the Roman Catholic Cathedral, into which the prisoner went, telling the boy to wait outside for the money. He did wait for three quarters of an hour, and then saw the prisoner running out. Calling out to him to take the goods if he wanted them, he received the injunction to "man-man." He did not "man-man," but returned to the shop, where there was no little commotion about the lost dress piece, which Madame Leger missed very shortly after the prisoner left. The next day consequently the boy went to look out for the prisoner, and having discovered him going into the Roman Catholic Cathedral, waited till he came out, and then gave him in charge.

These facts being put in evidence, His Lordship addressed the jury, observing that there could be no doubt the silk was stolen by somebody, and one of three persons, the prisoner, Madame Leger, or the boy. The question for them was against whom the facts went.

The jury convicted the prisoner, and Mr. Douglas then deposed that the prisoner had been twice before in gaol, for six months each time, once for stealing silk from a China shop, and once for stealing umbrellas.

His Lordship remarked that this was one of the advantages of trial by jury. He knew these facts before, but the jury did not, and the man was therefore tried as if he had always been the best character in the world. They must feel great satisfaction in having been the means of saving the Colony from the operations of a professional shoplifter.

Sentence: two years with hard labour and one month of this in solitary confinement, each occasion not extending over more than 14 days.

RETURN FROM DEPORTATION.

Wong Asea pleaded guilty to this offence. He was deported in July last, and the Ordinance (7 of 1870) was passed in August.

Sentence to six months' imprisonment, and after that to five years' deportation, to commence at the end of his imprisonment.

BREACH OF CONDITIONAL PARDONS.

Chee Atai and Pang Awoon were charged (separately) under the Ordinance, with being found at large in the Colony in violation of the condition of their pardons. The former received his pardon in November, and the latter in Oct. 1869, and they were found at large on the 30th November and 8th December, 1870, respectively.

Chee Atai said he came for his tools, and Pang Awoon for $5 which were owing him here. They were sentenced to 9 and 6 months' hard labour respectively, and to be redeported for life at the expiration of these terms.

BURGLARY.

Wong Anim was charged with burglariously and feloniously entering the house of Tang Afui, with intent to commit a felony therein, and also with entering the house of the said Tang Afui during the night, with intent to commit a felony therein.

The evidence in support of the information shewed that Tang Afui was master of a tea-shop in Queen's Road Central, occupying the ground floor of the building. On the first floor a teacher named Chan-fat-chee kept a school. He had seven pupils, two of whom lived in the school-room, which was in the front of the first-floor. At the back were two rooms, one a kitchen pertaining to the school, and a third room occupied by Tang Afui's accountant. There was no communication between this last room and the teacher's apartments. The only way of reaching it was by a ladder from the yard at the back. The school room was also reached by a ladder or staircase in front, but the kitchen, having communication with the school-room, might also be reached from the ladder at the back, as it had no outside wall. On the night of the 22nd November last, Tang Afui slept, as usual, on the counter in his shop. Under the counter was a box (containing about 20 taels,) which was used as a seat during the day, and pushed under the counter at night. At about four o'clock in the morning he heard a cracking noise under the counter, and getting up, saw the prisoner running away. He followed him up the ladder at the back into the kitchen, where he arrested him. The accountant in the adjoining room had been wakened by the noise, and witnessed the arrest. Going back to the box, he found no money gone, but that an attempt had been made to prize the lock with an instrument which was found on the floor. The same night, the prisoner, one of the teacher's pupils, had come to see his preceptor who went away at 9 o'clock, leaving him talking to one of the pupils who slept in the house. The prisoner shortly afterwards went down the outside staircase, and Mok Apin bolted the door. It was supposed that entrance was effected through the teacher's apartments.

The defence was that prisoner had obtained the leave of his master to sleep in the house, and that he did so, consequently that there was no burglary.

The jury found the prisoner guilty, and it was then shown by Mr. Douglas's evidence that he had already been convicted of forgery. Under these circumstances, his Lordship passed sentence of three years' penal servitude.

The court adjourned to Wednesday (to-morrow) at the ten o'clock, when one case is to be tried. The case of perjury at the last sessions is to be heard on Thursday. Mr. Hayllar will defend the prisoner.

PEKING.

The News Letter publishes the following correspondence, which passed between Mr. W. H. Seward and Wenseang, at Peking.

UNITED STATES LEGATION,
Pekin, November 8th, 1870.

Your Excellency,—

Having arrived at Pekin, on a journey through the East, I have had an earnest desire to obtain the advantages of an acquaintance with the statesman who has figured so long and eminently in the Chinese Empire.

I learn with sincere sorrow of your illness, which has prevented a public meeting with your Excellency, at the Office of Foreign Affairs.

May I take so great a liberty as to ask, that you will allow me to pay my respects to you at your private residence, if the state of your health shall at any time permit. With distinguished respect,

Your obedient Servant,
WM. H. SEWARD.

His Excellency Wan-tsiang.

Reply of Wan-siang.

I have had the honor to receive your note. I have long heard of your Excellency's great fame, which for many years has been cherished by all nations, and I myself have also exceedingly respected you, and longed for a better acquaintance. Since you have come to this country, its high officers will be still more desirous of seeing and conversing with you; but as for myself, my old malady having returned, I have been obliged to ask for leave of absence; and it was a cause of regret and disappointment that I was unable to meet you on the 7th instant, when you visited the Foreign Office.

I have your note of yesterday, in which you propose to yourself the great trouble of coming to see me,—a proposal that I shall engrave on my heart and write on my bones. But my residence is mean and small, and its condition would I fear offend you, which would be a matter of deep regret to me; and I have therefore set apart the 11th instant, to come and call on you, at one o'clock p.m., if I am anywise able to do so, when we can converse at length.

I shall be pleased to receive a reply, and avail myself of this occasion to wish that happiness may daily be yours.

NAPOLEON'S FINANCES.

The letter from Mr. Piétri, the ex-Emperor's private secretary, addressed to the London papers, affirming that his Majesty has no money invested in foreign funds, has produced a declaration from M. Max Pol, who says the position he filled in Paris enables him to say with certainty that the following is a list of investments abroad which have been made by the ex-Emperor:—

In 1854.—With Baring Brothers, of London	4,000,000
In 1855.—Victoria Bank	6,000,000
In 1858.—With Kindlet and Co., of Vienna	3,000,000
In 1860.—With J. B. Jecker, of Mexico	14,000,000
In 1863.—In the [illegible] Loan	3,000,000
In 1864.—In the Ottoman Loan	5,000,000
In 1865.—At New York, on mortgage, by Brown Brothers	10,000,000
In 1867.—In the Russian Loan, by Funder and Co., and Plitz, banker, at St. Petersburg	3,000,000
In 1869.—The Empress purchased an estate in her own name at Santander, through Don Trupita	3,000,000
In 1870.—The Empress purchased another estate at Alcoy, near Alicant	2,000,000
In 1870.—Placed with Berg von Dressen, at Amsterdam, for investment	7,000,000
Total	63,000,000

M. Pol says he knows of only one investment in the Rente made by Napoleon, and that was for the benefit of a "little lady" whose name he will not mention. The Tours correspondent of the Daily News says the ex-Emperor has real property at Lake Como, at Civita Vecchia, in Rome, and at Aremburg.—Pall Mall Gazette.

REPLY TO MR. MAGNIAC'S LETTER.

Mr. Magniac, M.P., writes to The Times:—The China question is of such exceeding interest that I do not hesitate to request the publication of the accompanying letter from the Foreign-office, which explains itself. I need not take up your space with the preceding correspondence, but, with reference to statements which have appeared, I may perhaps be permitted to say that the body of merchants have strictly confined their recommendations to the adoption of such measures as would, in their judgment, prevent any momentary outbreak of the populace, unchecked at the outset, from spreading into a general attack upon foreigners. Our anxious desire has been to avert the recurrence of a China War, from which none of our countrymen would suffer more seriously than ourselves, and none, I may assert with confidence, would on grounds of humanity deplore more sincerely.

"Foreign-office, Oct. 29.

"Sir,—I have laid before Earl Granville your letter of the 27th inst., inquiring whether there is any truth in the report contained in a telegram said to have been received from Bombay that troops were to be sent to China from Madras, and I am directed to say that neither the India-office nor the Foreign-office has any knowledge of such a movement. The report may, indeed, have originated in a native regiment being about to be sent to Hongkong, in the ordinary course of service, to relieve the native regiment which has been there for the last two years.

"There can be no doubt that Sir H. Kellett will take all such measures as may be found necessary and practicable for the protection of British subjects in China, if any special measures are required for the purpose. There is nothing later from Mr Wade than his telegram of September 26th, which has been published, or from the Admiral than a despatch to the Admiralty of the 22nd of August; but he appeared satisfied with the precautionary measures he had taken for the protection of the ports, at each of which a vessel of war is stationed.

"A battalion of Marines will be shortly sent to China to be at the disposal of the Admiral, and if he and Mr. Wade should be of opinion that British interests at Shanghai are in danger they are instructed to draw from Hong Kong or Japan a detachment of infantry, which, in case of emergency, might be landed for the purposes of protection, and which could remain on shore until the danger was past.—I am, Sir, your most obedient, humble servant,

"E. HAMMOND.

HOME NEWS.

(Summaries from the London "Daily News.")

October 22nd.

The Lord Mayor yesterday presided over a meeting, held at the Mansion-house, in aid of the fund for assisting the refugees whom the war has driven from their native or adopted land to this country. The object of the promoters is the relief of distress without regard to nationality, so long as the sufferers were persons who had been expelled from France, or necessary obliged to come to English shores for refuge. A resolution to form a society for the relief of the refugees was moved by Mr. Alderman Dakin, and passed. Sir H. Hoare, M.P., having unsuccessfully endeavoured to carry an amendment, limiting the operation of the fund to French emigres.

An appeal to the citizens of London has been issued by the Lord Mayor, who calls attention to the necessity for a thorough consolidation and efficiency of the City Volunteer regiments. Both men and money are required, and it should be no effort on the part of so great and wealthy a city to place an armed contingent on a sure and permanent footing.

The petition for an adjudication of bankruptcy recently presented against Lord Mostyn, was yesterday dismissed with costs.

A singular case was investigated at the Lambeth Police-Court yesterday. A cab proprietor named Bone was charged with having assaulted Dr. George Fowler, Mrs. Fowler, and an assistant in the complainant's surgery. Dr. Fowler was the medical attendant of the defendant's family, and while at Ramsgate had taken Mrs. Bone and her daughter out in his carriage for an airing. This, although a common practice with medical men, seems to have aroused the defendant's jealously, hence the assault. The matter was terminated by Mr. Bone finding sureties to keep the peace, and making an apology.

John Patrick M'Donald was yesterday charged at Bow-street with having unlawfully induced persons to quit her Majesty's dominions under a misrepresentation of the service in which they were to be engaged. The deposition of a man named Page was taken, to the effect that he had been enrolled for the Franco-Irish Ambulance Corps, and that, on arriving in France, he was told there was no such corps, but he must fight for the Republic. The prisoner was remanded without bail.

The steamer Roman, with the mails from the Cape of Good Hope, arrived at Plymouth yesterday afternoon. She brings diamonds to the value of £17,000.

Desertions from Metz are said by the Staats Anzeiger of Berlin to be on the increase; the alleged cause in all cases being hunger. The German army, on the other hand, is well supplied with food.

Garibaldi has issued a short proclamation to the French Volunteers and Francs-tireurs under his command, in which he tells them that Prussia now knows she must reckon with a nation in arms, and that he will give them instructions to regulate their operations against the invader and the enemy of the Republic. He counts upon them and they may count upon him.

The French Government has published a decree proclaiming that Chateaudun, in its resistance to the enemy, deserved well of the country, and granting it a credit of 100,000 francs to repair the damages it has sustained.

From the German headquarters we learn that Prussian outposts at Chevilly were disquieted by heavy cannonading and repeated sorties of infantry on the night of the 19th, but that they sustained no losses. In consequence of a sortie from Montmedy, the officer in command at Stenay has been forced to retire.

Our war telegrams from France announce that General Bourbaki has arrived at Lille; that Amiens and the department in which it is situated, the Somme, have been placed in a state of siege; that 2,000 Prussians have returned to Breteuil; that orders have been given at Lyons to supply the city with provisions for 70,000 men for two months; and that 5,000 German troops, with 12 pieces of artillery, are advancing on St. Quentin.

A special telegram in our impression of yesterday announced that Count de Keratry had arrived in Madrid. It is now stated that he is about to leave again, having failed in his mission. According to rumours in Madrid, the object of his visit was to ask the Spanish Government for military assistance, and had it been granted Italy would have sent 100 000 men to France. A telegram from the German headquarters at Versailles states that the French Chargé d'Affaires at Madrid has asked the Spanish Government to send an auxiliary corps of 50,000 men to the assistance of France; but that the request has been positively declined.

At the opening of the Wurtemberg Chambers, which took place yesterday, bills were presented continuing the present rate of taxation, and granting a further Military credit of 3,700,000 florins. A proposition that the finance report should be taken into consideration at once, was carried after some little opposition.

There has been an earthquake in the United States and Canada, the shock of which was felt in Boston, New York, Montreal, and other places. Much alarm was excited, but no damage of consequence is reported.

Consols closed yesterday at 92¼ to ⅜ both for money and the account. With one exception the changes in English railway stocks were all adverse, North Eastern falling 1 per cent. A reduction took place in several foreign bonds, while Cable and Construction shares were firm. In the open discount market choice three months' bills were taken at 2½ per cent.

October 24th.

Mr. Thomas Hare presided over a meeting convened on Saturday by the Representative Reform Association, to consider the best method of carrying out the principle of cumulative voting, as applied to the election of the London School Board. Amongst the speakers was Mr. J. S. Mill, who reminded the electors that the question to be decided was whether they wished to have a School Board which would improve the quality of the education hitherto given, as well as provide all possible facilities for bringing that improved education within the reach of all. He expressed a hope that the electors would make themselves thoroughly acquainted with the peculiarities of the cumulative vote, and take advantage to the fullest extent of the power which it gave them.

A telegram from our special correspondent at the German headquarters at Versailles states that on Friday a sortie was made from Mont-Valerien by the French, who were repulsed after a sharp fight, which lasted three hours. A hundred prisoners and two field pieces were taken by the Germans. The German official account states that the French were in considerable force, and were supported by some forty field-guns. The loss on the German side was comparatively small, and is said to have been caused by the falling of a grenade in the midst of a battalion. The King of Prussian witnessed the engagement from the viaduct at Marly, and sent an account of it to the Queen. Versailles, he says, was in a state of alarm.

A telegram from the royal head-quarters at Versailles brings the intelligence that the first parallel against the southern foot of Schlestadt was opened on Saturday night, and that 32 guns have been mounted, and are ready to fire on the town.

St. Quentin was occupied by the Germans on Friday morning after half an hour's heavy cannonading. A requisition of two million francs was made upon the town. A special telegram from our correspondent in Amiens announces that the Germans are advancing upon that city. Vernon was bombarded on Saturday, and Chartres was occupied by the Germans on Friday.

The superior military commands in France have now been definitively constituted. In the north the headquarters are at Lille; in the west at Mans; in the centre at Bourges; and in the east at Besançon. The three brigades of Garibaldi's army have also been constituted. Each battalion is said to be provided with a company of engineers.

French deserters from Metz are said, in an official despatch from Versailles, to be arriving at the German outposts, in great numbers, every day.

News from Orleans has been received in Tours. The municipal council had paid under threat of arrest 400,000 francs, the balance of one million francs, the sum originally imposed by the enemy. There was no sign that the city was about to be evacuated; powerful artillery was placed on the quays, and it was with difficulty that permission to cross the river could be obtained. Detachments of German cavalry were scouring the valley of the Loire, and carrying off cattle, which were sent to the army besieging Paris.

Consols closed on Saturday at 92⅜ to ½ for money and the account. There was very little business in the stock markets, and the tone generally was dull.

Archbishop Manning, in the course of a sermon yesterday, in the church of Notre Dame de France, expressed his profound sympathy with the French nation in its present trials. He confidently trusted that France would be restored to the position in which, for more than a thousand years, she had rendered such signal benefits to the Church.

IN THE COUNTRY FOR A CHANGE.

(To the Editor of the "Pall Mall Gazette.")

Sir,—As many people are now returning home after what they call their "holidays," it would be interesting, if they could be induced to tell the truth, to ascertain whether they have really derived any enjoyment or benefit from that annual migration it is considered necessary to take from the comforts of home, or whether they are not inwardly delighted to think that they will now be allowed to rest in peace for some months without being worried out of their houses by constantly hearing that they will be "all the better for a change." There are, I am well aware, some people who never can stay long in any place. Francis I. of France was one of these. When Castellanus in his funeral eulogy declared that his Majesty had gone to Paradise, the Sorbonne were much offended, and made a complaint to Court, insisting that the deceased monarch was in purgatory. "He may have been there," said Mendoza, who had been his steward, "but he is not there now. I know his temper better than any one. He can never bear to stay anywhere long. If he did go to purgatory, he merely passed through. He has got to Paradise long before this." On the other hand, there are many persons quite harmless to themselves and others if they are only allowed to remain beneath the shelter of their own roofs, but their family and friends generally succeed in dislodging them once a year by horrible predictions of the dangers incurred by staying at home. I have myself for about three years managed to evade my holidays. Living a little distance from town, in a house with a good garden attached to it, I humbly thought my children would be better at home than in a miserable seaside lodging, where they would probably catch the scarlet fever or measles. This summer great pressure was brought to bear upon me in order to get me out of my house. I resisted it until resistance became almost impossible, and at last, to the intense delight of every one but myself, I consented to take my family, consisting of a wife, six children, and four servants, for "a thorough good change." Thinking that the farther I removed from the great centre of civilization the less chance there would be of fevers and discomfort, I engaged a house in the neighbourhood of a town more than a hundred miles from London, where holiday-seekers are seldom to be found, and about a fortnight ago left my own comfortable home with its little smoking-room, my books and my garden, for the gloomy dwelling where I am now writing this letter. I forbear to give the distressing details of the "packing up" and other arrangements consequent upon departure, but the following extract from my diary gives the history of the first two days of this enjoyable expedition. I should mention by way of explanation that one of my children is, unfortunately for itself and others, a baby, and one of my servants a corpulent French nurse, who has, she says, at the present moment, one favourite nephew shut up with the army at Metz, another equally cherished shut up in Paris, and a third a prisoner in Germany; also that she has, on an average, three separate fits of hysterics daily caused by her anxiety on account of these relatives—one fit for each nephew.

October 3: Journey over at all events. Left home at 9 a.m. in four cabs, with a cart for the luggage. Put servants and baby in one carriage, wife and rest of children in another, smoking carriage myself. First station we stopped at guard put his head in at the window, "Any gentleman here of the name of Jones?" Pretended to be asleep. Betrayed by label on small carpet bag. "Lady belonging to you taken ill." French nurse; found her supported by other servants in epileptic fit. "Il faut jeter de l'eau sur le visage" (always attempt to speak French for practice when speaking of or to the nurse). Epilepsy turned to hysterical attack immediately; just time to catch up baby and carry it to smoking carriage before train started. Disagreeable-looking man in smoking carriage (a retired heavy) objected to presence of baby. Told him it smoked. Baby taken ill with fumes of tobacco. Retired heavy became insolent. Dared him to throw baby out of window. Rest of journey pursued in peace, save mutterings like distant thunder from retired heavy. Changed carriages at next station. On arrival at terminus found the servants had made a mistake about the change of carriages, and had gone by wrong train—it is supposed to Scotland. Only two boxes and a carpet bag missing. House comfortable but gloomy; engaged two charwomen, and tried to look cheerful.

October 4: Feel sure there is something wrong about the house. Looking out of window this morning saw two people looking at it and give grim smiles. Suspect there has been fever in it. Determined to find out something at neighbouring chemist's. Went into shop and asked for bottle of quinine. Said to chemist, "Dreadful state of affairs in Paris." "Dreadful, sir." "Added to other horrors they have small-pox within the walls." "Indeed, sir." "Have you had any small-pox here?" "There was one gentleman died, sir, about a week ago in Paragon-crescent; that is the only case I have heard of. What is the next article, sir?" Left the shop without another word; it was raining heavily. Wandered gloomily about, not liking to face them all at home. Found a fair going on in the town; stood in front of a travelling theatre. A brass band was playing in spite of the rain, and the wife of the proprietor was dancing the Highland fling in appropriate costume on an elevated stage outside. Remained looking at the exhibition for a quarter of an hour; felt half inclined to join the troupe of strolling players and disappear altogether from civilised life. Bent my steps towards Paragon-crescent, saw a railway cab at the door; the servants had just arrived. The French nurse was being carried up the steps by the cabman and the other servants.

I will not, Sir, encroach on your space by further extracts. I blame no one. I utter no complaint; but as regards comfort and happiness, I suspect Bazaine at Metz or Trochu at Paris are enjoying themselves quite as much as

I am at the present moment; and if the experience of those happier than myself whose troubles are now over were told, it would be found that many of them have derived quite as much suffering as benefit from the "thorough good change" afforded by their heartrending holidays.—I am, Sir, your obedient servant,

MISERRIMUS.

ENGLISH AND CHINESE DICTIONARY, WITH THE
PUNTI AND MANDARIN PRONUNCIATION.
AN ANGLO-CHINESE DICTIONARY, by the Rev. W. LOBSCHEID, published at the Daily Press Office, Hongkong.

FOR scope and practical service this Work stands unrivalled. All the new words which the Chinese have of late years been compelled to coin to express the numerous objects in machinery, photography, telegraphy, and in science generally, which the rapid advance of foreign relations has imposed upon them, are here given in extenso. Each and every word is fully illustrated and explained, forming exercises for students of a most instructive nature. Both the Court and Punti pronunciations are given; the accents being carefully marked on the best principle hitherto attained. The typography displays the success of an attempt to make the Chinese and English type correspond in the size of body, thereby effecting a vast economy of space, achieving a clearness not previously attained, and dispensing with those vast margins and vacant spaces which have heretofore characterized Chinese publications.

The scope of the work is so great, and its utilitarian purposes so complete, that a reference to its pages enables a person who understands English to communicate effectively with natives who understand nothing but Chinese. In this respect the work will be found indispensable to all Europeans residing in China, and to the natives themselves it explains subjects fully, with which very few indeed of them are perfectly acquainted. To parties resident in England and interested in China it cannot but be invaluable occasionally.

It comprises upwards of two thousand large quarto pages.

LETTERS, &c., ADDRESSED "LONDON" ONLY.

Many persons are in the habit of addressing Letters, &c., for well-known Firms and Individuals, to "London" only; but this practice not unfrequently occasions delay in such Letters &c. reaching their rightful owners. In all cases, however well the Firm or Individual for whom a letter is intended may be known, it is most essential, to ensure its correct and prompt delivery, that the streets in which they reside, and the number of the house, should form a part of the address.

Extracts.

National Hatreds.

Whatever may be the political view taken of the war, it is impossible to deny that the existence of intense national hatreds is a dreadful calamity, and the cause of all other calamities, for it acts and reacts incessantly. The greatest indication of progress that we can trace in our own country is that we appear to have outgrown these feelings. The English entertain at this time no national hostilities at all, and hardly condescend to notice the hostilities occasionally expressed against themselves. Our national songs are songs of loyalty and of independence, but not of hatred. But it is not so in Germany or in France. There all the sentimental and imaginative powers of the nation have been wrought upon by their poets, by their statesmen, by their leaders, until a contest between these nations appears to each of them to be a contest against the Powers of Evil, and no sacrifices are too great to procure the defeat and humiliation of their foe. To the propagation of this irrational and sanguinary passion Arndt and his imitators have not a little contributed. They have responded but too faithfully to the sanguinary chorus of the "Marseillaise."—"Ernst Moritz Arndt," in the Edinburgh Review.

Military Drill.

A new form of drill naturally followed other improvements, a mode suited to more intelligent action, and to better arms. All attempts to handle methodically a larger body of men than one brigade were dropped from the service; and in their place came field manœuvres, conducted so as to interest and teach each person employed, and to bring vividly before the minds of the higher officers the necessities of an actual campaign. Not that these things were done perfectly, or done all at once. Symptoms of the old pedantry still linger even down to the present day; and once standing vice of the system of the Hapsburgs, that close criticism of generals concerned in the manœuvring, which has enfeebled for a century past the judgment of Austrian officers, is practised, despite its distinct condemnation in the "Memorial," by their rivals in Northern Germany. Yet in the main the change was revolutionary, and soldier and officer gradually became what Prince Frederick Charles had desired they should be made. Only in a country where strong government and wise administration went hand in hand could so vital a change have been wrought out in so brief a time. But those who ruled at Berlin were fully conscious that the work before them needed instruments sharp as well as strong, and the Prince's counsels had fallen on attentive ears. Indeed, the changes in drill and discipline which followed their reception, great as these were, can hardly be compared in importance with the vaster one accomplished by Bismarck in the constitutional position of the army. For the same campaign of Solferino which had fixed the Prince's attention on the defects of detail in the Prussian army had shewn the great Prussian Minister how unfitted it was by its organic composition for ambitious uses. An army which, to be mobilised for war, must draw half of each division from the peaceful homes of militiamen of mature age, could not be safely called to arms except under national pressure. An army officered as to this second half chiefly from a middle class pervaded with liberal ideas could not be reckoned on for the strengthening of royalty at home, or for aggressive policy abroad. So the change was resolved on, and carried out by the ability of Count Bismarck and the tenacity of the royal master he guided, which put into the hands of the Prussian monarchy the most tremendous weapon that the skill of man has ever forged.—"The Campaign of August, 1870," in the Edinburgh Review.

German Unity: 1813 and 1870.

The history of mankind can scarcely present a spectacle parallel to that which we have just witnessed in the German rush to war. Not that the Teutonic race has ever been slack to battle, from the days of the Hermanns-schlacht till now; nor that opportunities of fighting have been wanted, for these have rarely been absent; nor again is it that wondrous efforts of patriotism have been unknown or unappreciated in Germany; for none can look back on the spirit that evoked, that waged, and that won the great war of liberation in 1813, without a feeling of reverence and awe for the men who engaged in it. But this war of 1870, in which we see for the first time One Germany rising in its strength, gathering, in its avalanche of excitement, all its manhood to battle, all its old age to guard, and all its womanhood to tend and heal the wounded and the sick, presents this striking contrast with the only rising like it which history can record. The German unity of 1813 was a unity of extremity. It was only when one nation after another had been overthrown, when one effort after another had proved unavailing, when all the meanness, all the dishonesty, all the treachery of king after king, minister after minister, party after party had been exhausted and exposed; when the power of the first Napoleon, like the scourge of God, had trampled on the rights, and bowed the strength, and chained the limbs of Germany one by one; when the iron had entered into the very soul of the race, and the French yoke had become intolerable; it was after all this, in the very agony of wretchedness, that the prostrate giant, in a huge convulsion of anguish, sprang up mightier than he had fallen, and, like a Samson, burst his heavy bonds. But this war of 1870 begins where the war of liberation ended. To unite and marshal Germany against the first Napoleon needed a long discipline of desolation; the men who fought at Leipsic had felt the bitterness of servitude, and those who raised the shout of freedom had long been uttering the groans of slavery. And these things happened nearly sixty years ago;—sixty years of time in a century incalculably rapid in every kind of progress. How is it that the Germans of to-day, who rush so eagerly to defend their country, leaving home, property, calling; knowing no fear save that here and there one German may prove less patriotic than they feel themselves—how is it that they should do this great thing, not in a last struggle, but at the very first breath of of danger, and at the very first clear trumpet-sound of war? There can be but one answer to this question. It is that a mighty spirit animates the race; a spirit compounded, if we may say so, of three different sentiments—memory of French wrongs, hatred of French rule, and longing for German unity. Nothing less than this could avail to bring all classes from all parts of the German land under a single standard and make her most distant sons swarm by the hundred thousand to defend in battle the noble river which has become as sacred in their eyes as the Jordan or the Ganges to nations of the East—"Ernst Moritz Arndt," in the Edinburgh Review.

HEALTH RESTORED

BY THE USE OF

BRISTOL'S SUGAR-COATED VEGETABLE

PILLS!

THESE Pills have justly acquired a widely extended reputation for their wonderful cures of severe cases of sickness,—cases in which all other Medicines had failed, and which had been given up by Physicians as beyond help—such as confirmed and long-standing Liver Complaints, obstinate case of Piles, Dropsy, &c., &c. But while admitting their wonderful curative powers in different cases, we wish to call attention to their great value in the every-day diseases of life, such as COSTIVENESS, for which they are a perfect specific; HEADACHE, relieved and cured by one dose; INDIGESTION always removed by them, and the stomach so toned and strengthened as to prevent a return. BAD BREATH cannot exist when the stomach is cleansed by

BRISTOL'S SUGAR-COATED

PILLS,

PURELY VEGETABLE.

For LOSS OF APPETITE they are the only sure remedy, as they never fail in carrying off the depraved, bilious secretions that float in the stomach and destroy the healthy, natural craving for food. Sour Stomach, Heartburn, Flatulency, and all Derangements of the Digestive and Excretory Organs, are promptly relieved, and cured by them. The public should always bear in mind that Bristol's are the only Pills made of the only vegetable substances yet discovered that are really

to the presence of which invaluable resinoids the extraordinary success of Bristol's Pills may in a great measure be ascribed. It is necessary, however, that the sick should always remember that in all diseases that have their origin in the blood, that best of blood-purifiers, should be used with the Pills, the two Medicines being prepared expressly to act in harmony together. When this is done faithfully, we have no hesitation in saying that great relief, and, in most cases, a cure, can be guaranteed, when the patient is not already beyond human help.

For general directions and table of doses, see the wrapper around each phial of Pills; but as different constitutions require different doses to produce the same effect, it is better that each person ascertain, by trial, the dose that suits their system, and take that dose, instead of following any general rule.

PROVED BY

THIRTY-FOUR YEARS' TRIAL.

IT is a true saying, that any preparation intended to stand the test of public trial and experience, must be possessed of undeniable and positive virtue, else its career will be speedily terminated, and its very name be forgotten among the myriads of similar failures that have gone before it. Proved by this test,

THE STERLING EXCELLENCE OF

becomes at once indisputable and self-evident. It was first introduced in the year 1832, and, from that date until the present time, its progress has been uniform and steady, each year showing an increase in the demand on the preceding one, until to-day it is acknowledged to be the

and depurative known to medical science, and as such is prescribed by the leading physicians in America, and recommended by them to their patients in all scrofulous, ulcerous, and eruptive diseases. BRISTOL'S SARSAPARILLA should not be confounded with other so-called sarsaparillas; it is from all others. It contains no minerals, and can be used freely, with perfect safety, in all kinds of weather, rainy or dry. It does not require the addition of iodide of potassium, nor any other article, to make it effective. It is strong enough for the robust man, and is safe for the weakest infant. Every ingredient in it is

BENEFICIAL TO HEALTH.

For every form of miasmatic disease it is a safe and reliable remedy, being a perfect antidote to malaria, a corrector of impurities, a cure for exhaustion, a preventive of debility, and a healthful stomachic. It is purely vegetable and entirely healthful, and no harm can ever result from its free use. The public should therefore and take no other. It is the cheapest, the strongest, and the best.

ASK FOR

THE LANGUAGE OF FLOWERS.

POETS of all ages have celebrated in song the beauty of flowers. Their fancies have ever delighted in likening the purest and holiest sentiments and feelings of the human heart to the floral beauties they so much admired. Every flower, from the tiny but fragrant Lily of the Valley to the gaudy Sunflower, has been seized upon and made to do duty as the representative of some condition, attribute, or action in life. The sweet Verbena is the mute representative of "Sensibility." While the fragrant Tuberose speaks of "dangerous pleasures," the Wild Rose tells only of "Simplicity." The Damask Rose is the sign of "Youthful Freshness," while the glaring Peony is "Anger." But there is another property possessed by the flowers equally if not more important than their beauty of form and color;—we refer to the fragrance they exhale. What can compare with the breath of the blooming rose or the tender fragrance of the virgin lily? Art tries and tries in vain to equal them. Chemistry, which seems to know no limit to its powers of simulation, fails completely in its efforts at producing the delicacy, combined with the richness of Nature's perfumes; and, with the single exception of

MURRAY & LANMAN'S

FLORIDA WATER,

We know of no preparation where the simple and natural fragrance of the flowers is preserved unaltered and unimpaired. The flowers themselves fade quickly away, and their exquisite breath is soon turned to the noxious gases of decay; but in this delightful floral water their perfume is seized upon at the moment when most fragrant, and preserved for all time, unchangeable, as an accessory to the toilet.

MURRAY & LANMAN'S

FLORIDA WATER

Stands quite unrivalled, not only for its fragrant perfume, but also for its well-marked hygienic properties, a feature not possessed by any other similar preparation. The wonderful power of

RESTORING AND REFRESHING

The fatigued and overtaxed mental or physical powers, is probably the distinctive feature of this great perfume, marking it as an absolute necessity for Ladies who wish to retain unimpaired the beauty of their complexion with the power and freshness of their conversation.

Always ask for the Florida Water prepared by LANMAN & KEMP, New York. All others are counterfeit. [1859
